

I think of this as my personal train of thought. And whatever the case may be, I think just as well inbound as outbound. Let's go over everyone's story again. He was walking to the casino. He turned and looked back, and saw... what did he see? A man? A figure, a shadow. Something and nothing. Was it a man? Or was it just men? If it was a man, was he just out for a stroll? Or headed to that part of town? Or was it a trick of the light? Am I going [] here? I'm in the right place for it.

?