

I think of this as my personal train of thought. And whatever the case may be, I think just as well inbound as outbound. Let's go over everyone's story again. He was walking to the casino. He turned and looked back, and saw ... what did he see? A man? A figure, a shadow. Something and nothing. Was it a man? Or was it just men? If it was a man, was he just out for a stroll? Or headed to that part of town? Or was it a trick of the light? Am I going [ ] here? I'm in the right place for it.

?