

I was a little sad when we traded in the old A for the J, but you thought it was a step up. And you moved up quickly. People said I must be going soft. But I'm not a sentimental person. There's no place for it. There's room for love. There's room for family. The rest is business. Business is not about feelings, it's about trust. She trusted you. I trusted you. And everyone starts out somewhere. I heard a story once. In fact, I've heard a lot of stories in my time. Ben Franklin left school and became a printer's apprentice. James Garfield was a janitor. Snorky Capone was expelled from school and worked in a candy store. And see what fine, upstanding men they turned out to be.
