

And I was right. I was looking at a real diamond. But still, this is a serious business. You don't just take one look at a diamond and decide you have the next Star of Africa. First, you have to put it under a microscope. You have to look at it from different angles. You have to take it out of its setting and look at it in the light. And the next step will be to [_____]. I'll tell you something for free. There is no such thing as perfection in this business. What matters is what kind of imperfections you got. Are you true blue or are you yellow?
