

A terribly energetic young couple have a plan to solve all our civic problems. By installing parking meters. Do I think the mayor would be interested? I think you should ask him yourself. I'm pretty sure he's still stuck back in the middle ages. The woman opposite me is wearing a black lace gown with a matching veil and a [_____]. And a lot of bling. This place is like walking around a market in Jaipur. I suppose half of them are replicas. But they can still have the real ones in a vault somewhere. The cabochon on that woman's finger is so huge that I can almost read the writing on it from here. Aida, maybe? Something with A.
